REMOTE LEADERSHIP COACHING

With qualified professionals, Atrium helps organizations secure consistent results and achievements through strategic management and coaching of remotely located management teams.

External, objective expertise can identify issues and provide solutions that can allow employees to progress and deliver optimum results. This is where Atrium can help.

WHAT IS THE BENEFIT OF USING ATRIUM REMOTE LEADERSHIP COACHING SERVICES?

Atrium offers a completely remote service that is both time efficient and cost effective. We save your precious time by undertaking consultations, training and counseling on your behalf, saving you the time and money by carrying out the entire process remotely.

Remote instant access to professional support

Atrium provides a ground-breaking remotely delivered video conferencing, training, coaching and webinar service, giving staff access to vital, in-depth support from industry professionals, at any time, without having to leave the office.

Save time and money

Remote support is particularly valuable for international organizations with staff in globally remote offices, as it provides access to consistent, in-depth assistance at any time, without the time or monetary cost of leaving their office.

- No need to spend time travelling
- Save the cost of flying in management consultants and counselors to overseas offices
- No need for time consuming travel or complicated diary management, as Atrium can liaise with staff remotely
- Reduced costs – 65per cent international HR costs can be attributed to travel or accommodation expenses

Access to a consistent and in-depth service

Atrium can help a company or an individual engage successfully in new strategies. Sometimes it takes an external, objective view to achieve a balanced analysis of an employee's development needs. Atrium can provide ongoing coaching or mentoring support to help employees find their feet in a new role.

Atrium steps in to lead on the journey from initial analysis of issues and challenges to the full evaluation of tasks and expertise. This leads to debriefing and defining concrete conclusions, followed by recommendations and careful follow-up.

HOW ATRIUM WORKS

Coaching and mentoring with on-going training and support is usually within the purview of HR or outsourced to professionals, but this is where Atrium comes in.

Atrium's remote leadership and development programs offer one-to-one sessions via telephone or video, so there is no need for complicated diary management or the expense of physically attending training sessions.

Examination of roles and performance

A combination of quantitative and qualitative evaluation of strengths, weaknesses and potential are used to improve performance of the individual (and the company). Atrium can review the company's overall projections to ensure that the management team is armed with the necessary tools to achieve the desired results and to help set and manage KPIs.

Psychometrics with 360 degree feedback

This involves the use of a multi-source performance management system which enables the entry of goals and objectives in order to measure achievement on KPIs. The system provides anonymous, confidential feedback from supervisors, co-workers and subordinates on an individual's competency via a simple online interface.

The development of leadership teams

Regular and consistent leadership planning seminars using remote technology affords managers the opportunity to meet regularly and conveniently, enabling communication and improvements across the organization. Ensure a clear code of conduct and consistent corporate message across all departments, no matter where they are located throughout the world.
